ABSTRACT

Statistical data and trends relating to the enrollment of minorities in higher education in Pennsylvania for the fall 1980 term are examined. There were 49,060 minority students enrolled in 1980 compared to 45,083 minority students in 1978. Minority students comprise 9.6 percent of the total enrollment, and 81.5 percent of all minorities are registered as undergraduates. Minority students make up 6.7 percent of all first-professional students and 6.8 percent of all graduate students. Black students comprise 7.7 percent of the total enrollment and 8.4 percent of the undergraduate enrollment; and 64.7 percent of all black students are full-time, while 68.0 percent of the total student enrollment is full-time. The state-related commonwealth universities enroll the most black students, 10,990 persons, who comprise 8.3 percent of institutions' total enrollment. Data on undergraduate enrollment by major fields of study indicate that: 1.3 percent of all agricultural and natural resources students, 7.3 percent of all architecture and environmental design students, 7.2 percent of all biological science students, 8.0 percent of all business and management students, 6.6 percent of all engineering students, and 6.1 percent of all physical science students are from minority groups. Data also are provided on selected graduate fields of study and the following first-professional fields of study: dentistry, medicine, veterinary medicine, and law. (SW)

STUDENT ENROLLMENTS, FALL 1980

Total Enrollments

A total of 49,060 minority students was enrolled in Pennsylvania's institutions of higher education during the fall 1980 term. This number represented 9.6 percent of the total fall enrollment. The minority enrollment represents a composite of Black students (39,434 students or 7.70 percent of the total enrollment), American Indian students (879 persons or 0.17 percent of total enrollment), Asian or Pacific Islander students (4,742 people or 0.92 percent of total enrollment) and Hispanic students (4,005 students or 0.78 percent of total enrollment). Sixty-five percent of these minority students were enrolled as full-time students which was equal to the percentage reported in 1978.

The increase in the number of minority students was 8.8 percent from 1978. This compared to a total enrollment increase of 5.0 percent for the same period.

State colleges and university minority enrollments were registered at 6,349 students or 8.1 percent of their total enrollment. The state-related commonwealth universities enrolled 13,915 minority students which comprised 10.5 percent of their student enrollment. Community colleges had 12,786 minority students which represented 16.0 percent of their total enrollment. In all, public institutions had a total minority enrollment of 33,050 students which was 11.4 percent of their total enrollment.

Private state-aided institutions recorded 4,564 minority students which formed 9.6 percent of their student body. The private colleges and universities reported 7,610 minority students which was 5.1 percent of their enrollment. Theological seminaries had 149 minority students representing 5.7 percent of their enrollment. Private junior colleges had 1,268 minority students comprising 19.9 percent of their enrollment. The proprietary schools and the state school of technology reported minority enrollments of 2,419 students representing 15.7 percent of the total enrollment. Private institutions had a total minority enrollment of 16,010 students or 7.2 percent of their total enrollment.

Level of Enrollment

A total of 32,123 minority people was enrolled as full-time students. Of this total, 28,486 were recorded as undergraduates, 929 were listed as first-professional students, 1,928 were reported as graduate students and 780 were reported as unclassified students.

The 16,937 minority people who were enrolled as part-time students were distributed as follows: 11,501 undergraduates, 3,520 unclassified students, 30 first-professional students and 1,886 graduate students.

Major Field of Study

Undergraduate enrollment by major fields of study data revealed that: 1.3 percent of all agricultural and natural resources students were minorities, 7.3 percent of all architecture and environmental design students were minority people, 7.2 percent of all biological science students were minority students, 8.0 percent of all business and management students were minorities, 6.6 percent of all engineering students were minority people and 6.1 percent of all physical science students were minority students.

Four first-professional fields of study were included in the survey. Data on these fields showed that minority students made up: 4.7 percent of all dentistry students, 7.8 percent of all medicine students, 4.7 percent of all veterinary medicine students and 6.5 percent of all law students.

The composition of selected fields of study for minority graduate students was recorded as follows: agricultural and natural resources, 3.3 percent; architecture and environmental design, 5.2 percent; biological sciences, 4.1 percent; business and management, 4.5 percent; engineering, 7.2 percent; and physical sciences, 6.3 percent.

Changes Since 1978

Since 1978 the number of minority students has steadily increased to the 1980 level. This increase in enrollments is 8.8 percent higher than 1978 and the percent of the total enrollment has risen from 9.2 percent in 1978 to 9.6 percent in 1980. Table six shows the comparison of 1978 to 1980 for each institutional category for each minority group, non-resident aliens and White, non-hispanic.

Non-Respondents

In order to have a complete set of data, enrollments for two schools were entered by the Division of Education Statistics. Data for the Curtis Institute of Music was estimated based on telephone conversations with an institute official. All students were reported as White, non-hispanic since only total enrollment was offered. Computer Systems Institute, Inc. did not offer any enrollment data and figures entered for this school were based on previously reported data.
